

who got away, anytime after next Monday.

I made a second visit to his house and found he and his wife in the garage, rear of house; garage faces 12th Street. Time was 4.10 P.M. I showed him picture of H. L. Dickmann and he stated in presence of Mrs. Hockinburg that when he saw the picture of Dickmann in the news he said he looked like the man who got away. Also said to me, after looking at picture in different angles, that he felt sure he was the other man, as he wore the same kind of a shirt, only had the collar unbuttoned and loose. He took special notice of both as to their looks and actions, also their tickets reading Orange and getting off at East Orange.
